This Week In News: Wednesday, April 10, 2019

Hello,

Happy Wednesday! It's NUVO News Editor Rob Burgess. I hope your week has been awesome so far. The weather certainly has been a pleasant change. Get outside and enjoy it if you are able!

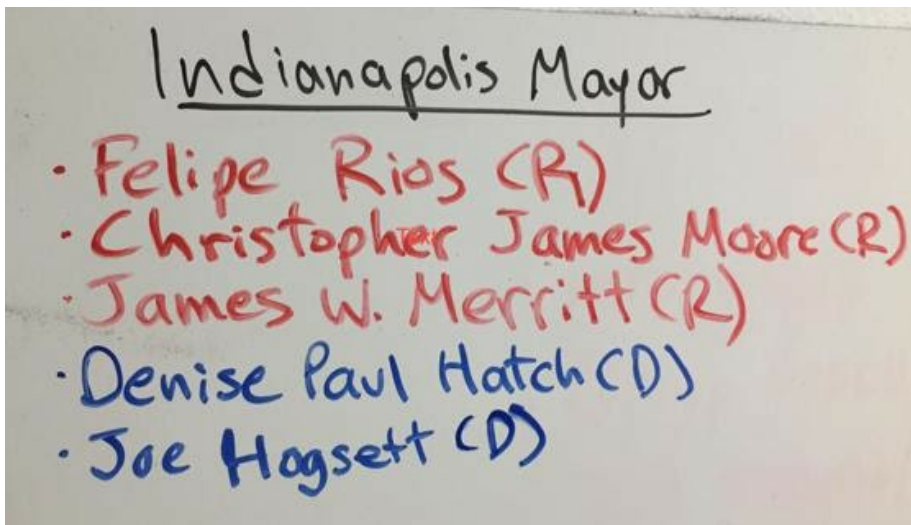

Thank you to everyone who has become a member of NUVO. Your contributions are not only appreciated, they are essential to supporting our work. We need your voice as well as your financial contributions. It's only $5 per month. I recently became a member myself, and if I can afford to do it, I know you can, too.

When you become a member you get special perks including a weekly members-only newsletter from Publisher Kevin McKinney each Monday. For example, this week members were the first to get access to three audio elements from my upcoming stories on housing migration trends in Indianapolis. The first piece is the panel discussion from "The Hidden Housing Crisis" event, the second piece is a meet and greet with John E. Hall, the new executive director of the Indianapolis Housing Agency; and the third piece is a presentation from the Mapping Prejudice at the 7th Annual Fair Housing Conference.

As I've said before, another way you can support our work is to shop the NUVO store. I know I've said before how great the merchandise for my weekly column, House of Burgess, looks. I could go on and on, but I'll just let this photo of my children, Emerald and Harper, speak for itself. Get your gear now and support our work while you and the children in your life look as fly as they do.

Early voting for the Tuesday, May 7 primary elections started yesterday. We are now now also in the process of collecting questions for the candidates on the ballot for the 25 City-County Council seats and Indianapolis mayor's office in the 2019 municipal elections here in Marion County.

Not only can you submit questions by clicking this link, but you can also rank which questions we've already received based on the ones you want answered the most. Make your voice heard! Today is the last day to submit questions and vote on the ones we've already received.

Finally, I have some new musical obsessions to share with you all. I love listening to NPR Music's Tiny Desk concerts. If you're like me, you can easily get stuck in a rut musically by listening to the same bands and songs over and over. These stripped down performances have introduced me to so many great artists I didn't know about before. I'm a huge fan of funk music, so I was quite pleased to discover the band Chromeo through the series. And, after reading some of the comments on the performance of one of my other favorite go-go bands, Trouble Funk, I discovered the band Vulfpeck. Now, they haven't had a Tiny Desk concert yet, but they need one! Here's a fantastic performance from a set in Belgium. As an amateur bass player I am in constant awe of Joe Dart.

Have a great rest of your day!

Thanks,

Burgess: Instead of Hugging Journalists, Support Our Work

According to the results of a new, disturbing report by the Pew Research Center, 71 percent of Americans think their local media outlets are doing just fine financially, but only 14 percent report paying for local news during the past year. Does anyone else see the problem here?
